

The way we communicate has transformed greatly over time. In the 24th century, technological inventions have led to the development and ongoing evolution of communication techniques, all designed to make it easier for people to connect with each other.