

Political factors: affect the economy of the country and include interest rates, tax rates, labor laws, and wages. These factors may not be directly related to business, but they affect the value of investment in the future.