

This section explores the fundamental differences between the Common Law and Civil Law systems. In contrast, Civil Law relies on codified statutes, where comprehensive legal codes define the rules.