

Procedures and Grounds for Divorce ##### Steps in Filing for Divorce 1. Filing a Petition: One spouse (the petitioner) files a legal document called a petition or complaint for divorce with the court. Serving the Petition: The petition must be formally delivered to the other spouse (the respondent), notifying them of the divorce action. Response: The respondent has a specified period to respond to the petition, either agreeing or contesting the terms. Negotiation and Settlement: The spouses, often through their attorneys, negotiate terms of the divorce. This document outlines the grounds for divorce and any requests for child custody, support, alimony, and division of property. Temporary Orders: Either spouse can request temporary orders for issues like child custody, support, or exclusive use of the marital home during the divorce process. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8.
