

The summit's statement outlined measures to minimize the pandemic's economic and social damage, support global growth, and make sure that global markets remain stable.