

decision support systems helps senior management to make non-routine decisions since they apply input from internal systems and external systems to guide the actions of management teams". It has created an appropriate framework for solving rapidly evolving problems and unanticipated challenges. It also uses probability and predictive models to provide inputs that guide management teams towards making strategic decisions.