

Both above-ground and below-ground landfill configurations are commonly used. It is the best suited for flat terrains with shallow groundwater elevations. Few other important aspects related to landfill configurations are briefly discussed in the following subsections. Figure 18.3 (d) is a below-ground option called valley fill (or canyon fill) used in mountainous terrains. These are suitable for relatively flat areas.