

Because comparisons of means frequently (and should) emanate from designed experiments, we take the opportunity to discuss some of the tenets of good experimental practice. The corresponding test statistics depend upon a partitioning of the total variation into pieces of variation attributable to the treatment sources and error.