refers to a continuous and consistent flow of data packets over a period of time.