

Developing countries are growing rapidly in the pre reproductive state and reproductive state greatly exceeds those in the post reproductive state in the population in developed countries