

2/Sample of the study? Researchers can study large groups of people. Samples enable researchers to conduct experiments faster and with more manageable data. It is very unusual for researchers to be able to obtain information from every member of the population they are studying.