

Introduction: Environment is the natural system that embraces all living organisms and natural components on the surface of the earth, including air, land, and animals. However, including humans naturally, the environment has become threatened by viruses such as pollution, especially resources, therefore, it is necessary to have effective solutions and impact on our environment as well as development and ecosystem.