

A linguist cannot help but be impressed by the Internet. It has often been said the Internet is a revolution—yes, indeed, but it is also a linguistic revolution. It is an extraordinarily diverse medium, holding a mirror up to many sides of our linguistic nature. The Internet is not a single thing