

Weak Bargaining Power of Labor: The ability of the buyer to purchase goods at the lowest price and the ability of the seller to sell his goods at the highest possible price is called the bargaining power. A laborer sells his labor for wages and an employer purchases labor by paying wages. Poor laborers have to work for their subsistence.