

Paris Convention provides for the right of priority in the case of patents , in those countries in which they exist. These subsequent applications will be regarded as though they had been filed on the same day as the first application.