

Renewable resources are capable of naturally renewing themselves over time (usually within a person's lifetime), whereas non-renewable resources are unable to renew themselves within a person's time...