

3.5. Analysis of Data The collection of the data is done through simple random and hence when the data is collected the data is first screened and the authentic resources are checked. In the next phase, the data is feed on the Microsoft Excel and hence two types of the analysis will be done, the demographic analysis and main research question analysis. The graphs will be drawn for the analysis of the research and hence description will be given along with the graphs to explain the response of respondent.
