

The small details of disappointment exhaust me, even though I am the same person who accepts calamities calmly, as if my mind finds it difficult to comprehend being let down in small situations...?