

Computerized searching of structural databases *New lead compounds can be found by carrying out computerized searches of structural databases.*Data base searching is known as database mining.