

I always try to help my best friend by listening to her problems and giving advice when she needs it. My support helps her feel more confident and less stressed, knowing that someone is there for her.