

An old man, the speaker says, is a "paltry thing," merely a tattered coat upon a stick, unless his soul can clap its hands and sing; and the only way for the soul to learn how to sing is to study "monuments of its own magnificence. Therefore, the speaker has "sailed the seas and come / To the holy city of Byzantium."