

Local authorities are working to restore the Ramsar site's lake by releasing water from the Chefia Dam and drilling wells. Public awareness campaigns emphasize the lake's importance, especially for endangered birds like the white-headed duck.