

The poet is firm in her courage that even if she is put down to the level of dirt, she will rise from it like dust rises.