

Acceptance is an active process a series of positive behaviors designed to convey to the patient as a respect for him as an individual human being who possess worth and dignity as such..