

In summary, while Victor and the creature in "Frankenstein" share common themes of loneliness, pursuit of knowledge, and responsibility, they differ in their origins, physical appearances, and motivations. These similarities and differences contribute to the complex dynamic between the two characters and the overall themes of the novel. Ask another question