

Geothermal energy is currently being harnessed through the extraction of hot fluids from two main sources: hydrothermal reservoirs with high permeability naturally, and Enhanced or engineered geothermal systems (EGS) with artificial fluid pathways.