

appreciation is the difference between the sale price and the purchase price of the investment. The dividend or interest from the investment is the yield.