

The first issue can be stated as a weak effectiveness of many renewables compared to conventional forms of energy. These efficiency levels, although quite improved, are not as high as those of the fossil fueled power plants which range between 40% and 60% according to Perez–Lombard et al., 2008.