

Families today just do not seem to spend time with each other. Independent children have no guidance and get out of hand because there is not a strong boss type figure around most of the time to help distinguish the difference between right and wrong. Once again, the job affects this aspect of the family as well. Eating dinner as a family is a major tradition that has been forgotten as the years have gone by and caused more separation among the family.