

Personality tests are the most important tests for any small or big organisation, as it is always possible to improve skills and qualifications in a specific sphere.(2017) The personality traits most frequently assessed in work situations include Extroversion, Emotional stability, Agreeableness, Conscientiousness and Openness. Psychological tests are one technique in assessing these individual differences to provide a successful match between people and jobs. Bogatova, M .