The embryo consists of the developing organism prior to birth in mammals the embryo refers to the early stages of development until the end of the organ building phase known as organogenesis after This developing a mammal a fetus until birth a birth it becomes a neonate and it doesn’t stop there developmental progresses to the maturation af adult from and continues into senescence.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com