

Celebrating Ramadan was a very important tradition, marked by our unique customs and communal spirit. We have incorporated digital tools to coordinate charitable activities and connect with extended family members through video calls. My mother would prepare a variety of traditional dishes such as samosas and harees, while my father would organize family prayer times and lead us in gratitude and reflection. They have helped me maintain a strong connection to my cultural roots and instilled the values of generosity and togetherness that still define me.