

The data processing system processes and analyzes the collected data to produce images and spectra of celestial objects.