

Early detection of MG infection is essential for initiation of the control measures to reduce the economic losses in poultry industry.