

The relationship of economics to geography: Geography studies the natural and human environment and economic resources. It is the role of economics to benefit from this science to serve the purposes of economics.