

In recent years, there has been a growing interest in integrating sustainability and cultural identity into skyscraper design.