

Recycling significantly benefits the environment by conserving natural resources, mitigating waste issues, and reducing pollution. It also generates income. Individual contributions include using recycling centers and increasing public access to recycling bins.