

Science can be used to protect the environment in many ways. We can use science to raise awareness of the importance of preserving the environment.