

Three billion people, around 40% of the world's population, use online social media.