

Caitlin Clark's Indiana Fever teammates under heavy criticism following more hard fouls against her. However, despite the Fever's victory, Clark's teammates are receiving some heat online, as they did not react after the rookie was fouled hard nor defended her, as she's being objected to harsh treatment by her opponents since she stepped into the WNBA. What Caitlin Clark says about it Clark spoke to the media after the game and reacted to her treatment on the basketball court, and as she acknowledged that it's not easy, 'it is what it is.' The Fever was awarded a single free throw, which ultimately proved to be the deciding factor in a tightly contested game that ended in Indiana's favor. However, the rookie made headlines not for her performance on the court but because she was the subject of a hard foul by Chennedy Carter in the last seconds of the third quarter. The impact of Carter's foul left Clark on the floor, with the referee deeming it a common foul rather than a flagrant. transition from the NCAA to the WNBA has been a bit more challenging than expected, as her season with the Indiana Fever began with a poor 2–8 record, with their second win of the season coming this Saturday against the Chicago Sky by a narrow score of 71–70. It is what it is, honestly