

LAN is a network that usually connects a small group of computers in a given geographical area.