

Air is a renewable resource because it can be restored by natural means faster than it is consumed by humans