

Sustainability has become a critical consideration for organizations worldwide, and integrating sustainable practices into logistics and supply chain processes is essential. To achieve sustainability goals, organizations need access to relevant information from various sources. This report aims to identify the different sources and types of information required for improving sustainability in logistics/supply chain processes, with a particular focus on reducing environmental effects and enhancing energy and material efficiency.