The benefits of play are wide-ranging, with both social-emotional and academic gains.Children can also learn social skills when they are playing with their peers.[10] Plus, spontaneous play helps children learn to cope with stress in healthy ways by teaching them to think flexibly.[7]

Summarized by © lakhasly.com