

The geoid is the most important equipotential surface for the following properties: ?It is the only equipotential surface that can be connected to the terrain ?